3. ENGAGEMENT EXPECTATIONS

Attendance and Participation

Whether you are undertaking this course as a full-time or a part-time student, active participation in the lab sessions is crucial to effective learning and a requirement that contributes to the intellectual development of all involved.

Through active participation in seminars and lab exercises, you practice a range of skills that are key to successful passage through the programme, including clear and structured argumentation, debate, brainstorming, and appreciation of different viewpoints, all of which play vital parts in your intellectual development and will be very important to your completion of the programme's assessments.

If want to take a break in studies, you must inform your Programme Director and the Programme Administrator in writing, non-attendance will not be recognised as an interruption of studies or withdrawal. See further:

4. MODULE COMMUNICATION METHODS

How we will communicate

Outside of class, the main method of communication for this module will be through the Moodle forum and Moodle announcements. You should ensure that you check the Moodle regularly or receive Moodle announcements to an email address that you check regularly.

Response Times

If you email the Lecturer or TA you can expect a response within three working days. After that period you can send a follow-up reminder email.
